This change in proposed rule does not apply to local governments; therefore, no costs or savings are anticipated. This change in proposed rule only applies to applicants for licensure as an armored car company or an armored car security officer.

C) Small businesses (fewer than 50 employees) AND persons other than businesses:

This change in proposed rule only applies to applicants for licensure as an armored car company or an armored car security officer, which some may qualify as a "small business". The Division anticipates a savings to armored car companies, which may qualified as a small business, of approximately $60 per badge ordered for each security officer due to the fact that the name of the armored car company and a number will no longer be required. The Division is unable to determine how many badges an armored car company may order in a year.

8. Compliance costs for affected persons

("person" means any individual, partnership, corporation, association, governmental entity, or public or private organization or any character other than an agency):

No additional compliance costs are anticipated as a result of this change in proposed rule beyond those previously identified in the original proposed rule filing. Only savings are anticipated to armored car companies as a result of the additional amendments as identified above.

9. Comments by the department head on the fiscal impact the rule may have on businesses:

This change to proposed rule corrects clerical errors and removes requirements inadvertently entered in the original filing (insurance coverage for false arrest and invasion of privacy; badges with names of armored car company and number). No fiscal impact to businesses is anticipated from these corrections. Francine A. Giani, Executive Director
